

Editorial

Committed to disseminating scientific production and expanding the reach of the Scientific Journal of the Faculty of Medicine of Campos (RCFMC), we take on new challenges with the realization of the first bilingual Portuguese-English edition and its inclusion in new indexers that will surely provide greater visibility and quality of scientific communication.

In the following pages, we present an Original Article that conducted an observational study based on data obtained from fluid balance charts of patients admitted to Intensive Care Units and proposed a fluid balance management model for critically ill patients. The Review Articles highlighted the main clinical complications, diagnostic methods, and therapeutic approach to the benign form of Gestational Trophoblastic Disease; the treatment of characteristic symptoms of Autism Spectrum Disorder using medicinal extracts of Cannabis sativa; the process of hematopoiesis, epidemiology, staging, clinical presentation, diagnosis, and treatment of Chronic Lymphocytic Leukemia; the phytochemical prospecting of special metabolites from the species Camellia sinensis; the adverse effects of prolonged use of Zolpidem; the etiology, epidemiology, pathophysiology, clinical manifestations, diagnostic investigation, and treatment of Dermatitis Herpetiformis; and concluding the series of reviews, an article that highlights the benefits and therapeutic efficacy of cannabinoids in chronic pain. This volume of the RCFMC also presents two Case Reports, one describing a rare episode of trigeminal neuralgia in a young patient and the other reporting an occurrence of aneurysmal bone cyst in the dorsal spine, which was diagnosed, treated, and is under follow-up.

This edition reflects the collective work of people who contribute to ensuring that we continue to publish medically significant articles with quality and thematic variety in each new volume. With this approach, we share our thanks to the Researchers who submitted their works, the invaluable voluntary efforts of the Reviewers, the efforts and dedication of the Editors who impartially ensure the quality of the publications, and finally, we thank the Technical Team for their dedication and valuable contribution.

Enjoy your reading!

Valmir Laurentino Silva
Editor-in-Chief